Americana, Roots, Country... With an Ocean View

These life partners and licensed sea captains have logged over 30,000 bluewater-miles crossing the seas and even more criss-crossing countries, living the life that informs their songs and stories.

On stage, Mike's earthy voice and masterful work on assorted guitars are perfectly matched by Amy's sweet harmonies and tasty percussion and drums. Through their accomplished songwriting, storytelling and instrumentation, Mike and Amy invite audiences to share their lived adventure and their genuine humanity. Audiences invariably say 'yes!'

The Aikens have produced seven nationally and internationally-recognized albums and appeared in concert venues, clubs and festivals across North America and Europe. Mike writes music with partners in Austin and Nashville and chronicles his music adventures in Americana Rhythm Magazine. Amy heads Northwind Records, an Indie label established in 2002. In 2005, Mike and Amy founded the Aiken & Friends Fest benefitting music education.

Indoors, outdoors, festivals, concert halls and intimate songwriter events, Mike and Amy Aiken entertain audiences from the first tale to the last tune.

"There's a warmth about them audiences just love."

"A performer loved by audiences." – Virginia Arts Commission

"Great show! Very happy, we will have them back." – Joshua Freeman Foundation

"Something of a floating John Prine crossed with Ry Cooder." – Sail Magazine

"Mike and Amy took the crowd on an exotic adventure to the farthest Isles of the Caribbean, the Appalachian Mountains and beyond." – Paul Shugrue, WHRV-NPR

"His original songs are sharply written, with memorable tunes and intelligently observant lyrics about life. The songs come across as 'country-soul'—similar to a gritty, soulful singer like Tony Joe White." – David Dennie, Pretlow Concert Series

"The audience hooped and hollered and stomped their feet! With his stories and songs, it was like an old friend singing on your back porch." – Mark McCreary, Ross Ragland Theater
